THE TRUTH ABOUT IT.

(From the Clinton Caucasian, Alliance Organ.)

The people, and Alliance at that, have | which await him. thought the Vance matter over and have rendered their verdict, a verdict decided by Alliance votes. That verdict is, that there is not a man in North Carolina who is better able or who will defend the people's rights and advocate their cause more zealously and honestly in the senate of the United States than Z.B. Vance. In the Democratic caucus of the next Legislature he will be nominated on the first ballot if not by acclamation.

The editor of the Clinton Caucasian, Mr. MARIAN BUTLER, is Senator-elect from Sampson county, an ex-President of his County Alliance, and is now County Lecturer. He knows what he is talking about, and there is no man who can control his action. And there are one hundred Alliancemen elected to the Legislature who are just like Mr. BUTLER. He speaks for himself and he speaks their sentiments.

CAN THEY STEAL IT?

Governor GOODELL yields to CHAND-LER and has called an extra session of the Legislature in New Hampshire. It is proposed to decide that the Republicans elected under the census of 1890 shall sit in the Legislature. This would give the Republicans in the House 189 memhers to the Democrats 188.

The opinions of E. ROCKWOOD HOAR, ex-Attorney General of the United States, and WM G. RUSSELL, both distinguished Republicans of Massachusetts, have been obtained by the Democrats. The eminent lawyers maintain the Democratic claim as to the non-eligibility of the members elected under the census of 1890, and also of those elected under the classed towns. So far as can be judged the effect would be, if it were applied, to make the new House of Representatives consist of 175 Democrats and 163 Republicans.

The Senate will stand 15 Republicans and 19 Democrats, so that if the Republican contestation regarding the House shall prevail, there will be a Republican majority of seven on joint ballot. The Democrats claim as their right a majority of five on joint ballot.

CHANDLER is a fit subject to steal a State. He was sent to Louisiana in 1876 and succeeded in stealing its electoral vote.

THE GREAT COLUMBIAN FAIR.

We publish in to-day's Chronicle a communication from the pen of Mr. PETER M. WILSON upon the importance of early steps being taken to have North Carolina well represented at the World's Fair. There is no man in the State so competent to speak upon the value of such an exhibit as Mr. Wilson and no man who knows so well how such an exhibit should be prepared and arranged.

The CHRONICLE invites the attention of all its readers to Mr. Wilson's article, giving it our fullest endorsement. We particularly commend it to the consideration of the newly elected member of the General Assembly, who will be called upon to decide what part North Carolina will take in the great Columbian Fair. One of the original thirteen states and uaving the most varied resources and products of any in the Union, North Carolina cannot afford to neglect this opportunity of displaying its wealth and showing its great advan-

It is not a question: Can we afford to make an exhibit? It is: Can we afford as a progressive state NOT to show to the world what we have, and thus to invite a good class of immigration which we need very much to help develop our untold resources?

A GODLY MAN HAS FALLEN.

There has been a singular fatality among the leading Methodist preachers | Supreme court income to practice | of North Carolina during the past two law. years. The latest of that goodly com pany to pass from labor to refreshment was Rev. WM. H. BOBBTT, D. D., who had filled many important stations in the Conference, joining the Conference in 1846 at New Berne. There was no man in the Conference more faithful, more gentle, more loving and more loved. He was unambitious and yet he was kept in the Presiding Eldership half of his ministerial life. Honors came to him because he was worthy and faithful. Not brilliant as a preacher, he was earnest, thoughtful, winning, and instrumental in saving souls. Hundreds will grieve at his death, and linger in pleasant memories over his spotless and use- Dick. come to-morrow anyhow, ful life. "His deeds smell sweet and blossom in their dust."

Senator Vance has never lost confidence in the people. We publish an interview from him to day in which be says that there is no doubt about his reelection to the Senate.

The man who distrusts the honesty and integrity of the people is not worthy to lead them or be trusted by them. When there was much talked of opposition to Senator Vance last summer, an effort was made to prevent any instructions for him. But that effort failed. The people were for VANCE, and in their conventions they so declared in every county except a few. If those instructions, in any county, were illegal, or did not represent the people, the member of the Legislature from that county was illegally nominated. To state the proposition is to refute it.

The CHRONICLE has always believed Senator Vance to be our greatest man. His unshaken confidence in his re-election, evincing as it does his unchanging faith in the honor of the people of North Carolina, shows that he is worthy of all the honors that have come to him and

SENATOR VANCE knows that he is safe. The people have spoken, and they not only love him and trust him but they have a high sense of honor as well. Their representatives will not prove false to their pledges or to the promptings of their own heart. It does not matter who opposes SENATOR VANCE or seeks to compass his defeat now. It will be a fruitless fight. No honorable man will disobey instructions or prove false to pledges; and the men elected to the Legislature are honorable men. And more: They are the keepers of their own conscience; they do not ask for advice

Senator VANCE is right. The people are honorable, and so are their representatives in the Legislature.

AN APPEAL TO PHAROAH.

The Washington Post says that "the author of 'An Appeal to Pharoah: a Radical Solution of the Negro Problem, which has attracted considerable attention, is Mr. CARLYLE McKINLEY, an editorial writer on the Charleston News and Courier." It is a very remarkable book -trenchant, virile and original. It ought to be read by every thoughtful man, particularly by every negro who is interested in the destiny of his race. We do not believe the solution of the negro problem offered by Mr. McKinleyviz: to transport all the women of childbearing age and their husbands to Africa-is feasible. But it is worthy of consideration, and his argument and statistics have great interest to the lovers of social questions.

DR. A. A. LIPSCOMBE, Chancellor of the University of Georgia, is dead. He was easily the finest Belles Lettres scholar in the South, and in the vigor of manhood was a pulpit orator of polish and power. He was at his best in critical productions, and his "Characters of Shakespeare" delighted thousands. They first appeared in the Southern Methodist Quarterly Review and we recall with peculiar pleasure his delineation of the characters in the "Merchant of Venice." The South has lost a profound thinker, a vigorous writer, a versatile and accomplished classical scholar, a true Christian, and a splendidly equipped educator.

A REAL PROVERB.

(New York Herald.)

It is a grand thing to have a good hay crop, but it is a much more difficult thing to get it into the barn before the rain spoils it.

Democrats will please paste this in their hats for future reference.

Senator VANCE is level-headed again. He favors a Northern man for speaker of the House.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL.

Senator John T. Morgan, of Alabama, has accepted the invitation to be present at the great Inter State Convention at Asheville in December, and has consented to attend.

Capt. W. W. Carraway, of Kinston, has accepted a position as travelling agent and correspondent on the Raleigh | into another business, and for that reason News and Observer. He is very popular throughout North Carolina, and is

HER LAST LETTER. 'My darling Dick, my soul's delight, I could not see you Sunday eve: You must not call on me to-night.

Dearest, how can I tell you why: But such is fate and all is o'er— I keep my secret with a sigh, But in this world we'll meet no more,

And yet I love you just the same.
But do not judge me as I seem.
Forgive me, Riehard! Do not blame, Think of me only as a dream, For I am doomed to fate and die—
We'll meet; perhaps, some happier day;
Visit my tomb, but do not cry. Adieu! Your poor distracted May.

The doctor says it hardly shows; I'm not ashamed to tell you now, I had a pimple on my nose.
